

Human Evaluation Questionnaire for Code Summary Generation

This questionnaire is designed to evaluate the practical acceptability of automatically generated code summaries in real-world documentation settings. Evaluators are asked to assess whether the automated summary is suitable for direct use in developer-facing documentation.

Evaluation Instructions

For each function, please carefully review the provided function code, reference summary, and automated summary. Then indicate whether the automated summary is acceptable for practical documentation purposes. If you select "Reject", please briefly explain the reason (e.g., incorrect functionality, inappropriate terminology, redundant details, or violation of documentation conventions).
